

United States Senate

WASHINGTON, DC 20510

May 9, 2022

The Honorable Katherine Tai
United States Trade Representative
600 17th Street NW
Washington, D.C. 20508

The Honorable Thomas Vilsack
Secretary of Agriculture
1400 Independence Avenue SW
Washington, D.C. 20250

Dear Ambassador Tai and Secretary Vilsack:

Advancing U.S. economic interests – particularly in the Indo-Pacific region – requires meaningful and enforceable market access commitments. We are concerned that the Biden administration is foregoing America’s trade and strategic leadership by failing to pursue such commitments, whether through its Indo-Pacific Economic Framework (IPEF) or through its decision not to pursue comprehensive free trade agreements, which was reflected in the President’s 2022 Trade Policy Agenda. The lack of ambitious market-opening initiatives not only disadvantages U.S. workers, farmers, ranchers, and businesses today, it jeopardizes America’s competitiveness, resilience, and security in the long-term.

Unlike traditional trade agreements, the IPEF is not expected to include critical market access commitments. The failure to include such commitments puts American exporters, including agricultural producers, at a competitive disadvantage in the global market. It also signals to the world that the United States is not committed to fully engaging commercially or strategically in the region. Thus, while some aspects of the IPEF may have potential, it is not a credible counterweight to the market-opening agreements that other countries, including China, are actively advancing.

America cannot afford to sit on the sidelines in trade. For generations, a large part of our nation’s economic success has been based on the United States advocating for more, not less, open markets. For example, U.S. farm and food product exports grew from $46.1 billion in 1994 to more than $177 billion in 2021, which was largely due to greater market access opportunities for American exporters. These U.S. exports lead to good-paying jobs at home and help spread the reach of American influence abroad. Free trade agreements are also far from relics of the past, as Ambassador Tai recently implied at a hearing before the Senate Finance Committee. In fact, 13 of the 16 enacted U.S. free trade agreements were passed by Congress since the turn of this century. Opening new markets for customers, reducing barriers for business, and enforcing robust trade agreements are cornerstones of our national prosperity.

Regrettably, U.S. trade leadership has thus far taken a backseat to other priorities under this administration. But, as you know, global trade does not simply pause until the administration deems it worthy of pursuing. Opening new markets means more high-paying jobs for workers and lower-cost goods for consumers at home. The administration’s failure to engage on Trade

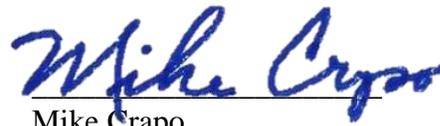

Promotion Authority or find other avenues to open markets means our workers and producers will continue to lose ground to competitors. In contrast, China continues to advance its Belt and Road Initiative; it recently concluded the Regional Comprehensive Economic Partnership, the world's largest free trade agreement; and it now aspires to join the higher quality Comprehensive and Progressive Agreement for Trans-Pacific Partnership.

We respectfully urge you to include market access and enforceable commitments as part of the IPEF, and any other U.S. trade agreements, and we stand ready to work with you to strengthen American trade leadership.

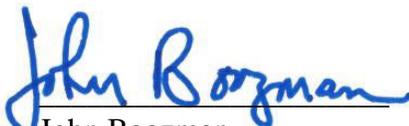

Sincerely,

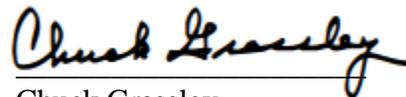

John Thune
United States Senator

Mike Crapo
United States Senator

John Boozman
United States Senator

Chuck Grassley
United States Senator

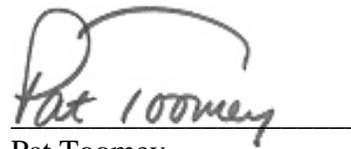

John Cornyn
United States Senator

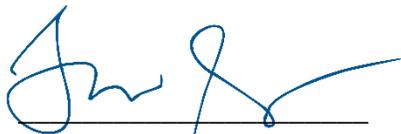

Richard Burr
United States Senator

Rob Portman
United States Senator

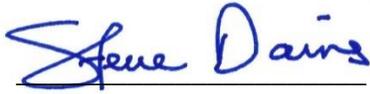

Pat Toomey
United States Senator

Tim Scott
United States Senator

Bill Cassidy, M.D.
United States Senator

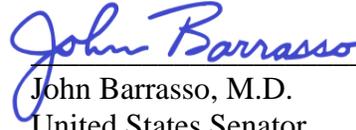

Steve Daines
United States Senator

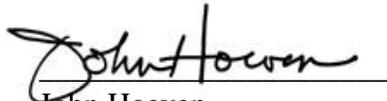

Todd Young
United States Senator

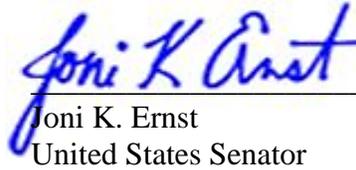

Ben Sasse
United States Senator

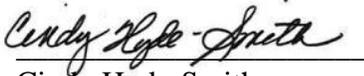

John Barrasso, M.D.
United States Senator

John Hoeven
United States Senator

Joni K. Ernst
United States Senator

Cindy Hyde-Smith
United States Senator

Roger Marshall, M.D.
United States Senator

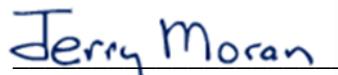

Tommy Tuberville
United States Senator

Deb Fischer
United States Senator

James M. Inhofe
United States Senator

Jerry Moran
United States Senator

Ted Cruz
United States Senator

M. Michael Rounds
United States Senator